

Following Space heating, water heating accounts for the second largest proportion of natural gas consumption in residential applications. High efficiency water heaters have improved technology resulting in lower energy usage while improving comfort and functionality. Another great way to conserve energy is by reducing overall water usage.

Zia Natural Gas Company offers incentives to save energy, water, and money with water heating. Additional information is provided below. When applying for Water Heating Rebate, please complete Application pages 1, 3 & 6.
